

- Description of the area

Sea or mountain? In l'Hospitalet de l'Infant i la Vall de Llors no one has to choose between one option or another, because the two elements merge. Natural and quiet beaches next to the Mediterranean mountain: this is one of the main attractions of this territory.

In this municipality of 102 km<sup>2</sup>, distributed between the coastal plain and the pre-coastal mountain range, you have the feeling that everything is within reach and that nothing should be renounced, because you can enjoy a landscape rich in contrasts and a varied range of activities, giving free rein to all the senses.

This integral experience is lived thanks to the five population centers that make up the municipality: the three inland population centers

(Vandellòs, Masboquera y Masriudoms) and the two of coast (l'Hospitalet de l'Infant y l'Almadrava). Each population center has its own charm, history and traditions, multiplying the number of possibilities to fully discover l'Hospitalet de l'Infant i la Vall de Llors. We invite you to know them all!

- History of the municipaly

Until the end of the 19th century, and since the Middle Ages, in the plain of L'Hospitalet, only the village of L'Hospitalet de l'Infant existed. It was made up of a group of houses arranged around the hospital, which gives its name to the town located at the mouth of the Llastres river ravine. Throughout this period it was a land of passage between the Ebro and the Valencian lands, to the south, and the Camp de Tarragona and Barcelona, to the north. It was a dangerous territory, feared by travelers, since the surroundings of the Balaguer pass and the Torn mountain were always full of pirates and bandits, always attentive to the assault of the caravans that circulated on the roads. For this reason, in 1346 the Infante Pedro IV and his mother, Blanca de Anjou, founded a hospital with the function of assisting travelers in need. In this hospital the different caravans that traveled south were grouped, and those that, coming up from Terres de l'Ebre, had crossed the Alfama desert and the dreaded Balaguer hill, rested.
